The Westmead Feelings Program (WFP): Emotion-based Learning for Children with Autism Spectrum Disorder is an evidence-based clinical intervention program, researched over the past 10 years. WFP is designed specifically to build the emotional and social skills of children on the autism spectrum.

This group-based intervention program helps children on the autism spectrum to understand the feelings of themselves and others, to problem solve, and to regulate their feelings.

Using WFP, teachers, parents, clinicians and children on the autism spectrum can work together to effectively express, communicate and work through emotions.

*NDIS individual funding may be used to pay for sessions. Please speak to your WFP facilitator about whether this applies to your child.
